This publication has a mission to spread juridical knowledge democratically and diverse, trying to englobe various points of view and thoughts inherent to the dialectical ideas of law science.

The first journal of the SSPP published in 1976 was consolidated along the following 44 years as a respectable reference in the juridical world. The Academic Journal of the SSPP received the ISSN (International Standard Serial Number) since 2007 and it obtained proper conditions and respect with the periodical distribution from 2017 on.

Today, the journal has its own editorial council, double blind review, a renowned team of referees, strict rules to article submits, a high quality on exogeny and endogeny criteria in all its issues, characteristics that lead us to believe that it will has the right merit and qualification on its first review as a scientific journal very soon.

This issue allow us to learn more about a great variety of aspects related to law science along its 12 articles. The Academic Journal highlights a number of professionals from different areas, 04 foreign columnists, one from the United States of America, one from Croatia, one from Bahamas and one which was written by two authors, one from Serbia and another from Bosnia and Herzegovina, which permits us a global and systemic view concerned to law.

The on line version of the Academic Journal of the SSPP is going to get broadcasted due to the huge numbers of challenges everyone suffered with the pandemic that shocked the planet on the first semester of 2020. The success of this edition was achieved with the contribution of CEAF, Editorial Council, Referee Body and all the servers of the MPCE who support this hard and complex work.
